

26

ABSTRACT

The present invention refers to a composition and a treatment for mixed infectious diseases in the human reproductive system, wherein the composition is an association of compounds containing fluconazole and tinidazole. The composition being associated in doses lower than those currently in use. The combination has proven to be highly efficacious and shown a good degree of tolerance.